PHRA SAMUT CHEDI

One of the most impressive sights along one of the banks of the Chao Phraya River is this brilliant white pagoda standing on an island, in the middle of the river Phra Samut Chedi. Historically, it was King Rama II’s idea to have a temple built on this idyllic location, by the river, but it was King Rama III who completed the project. This Sri Lankan-style bell-shaped Chedi later saw more construction change by King Rama IV who also added more Buddha images.
